

A PROCLAMATION by Governor Otto Kerner proclaiming next week annual mental health week in Illinois is received by John L. Cutler, superintendent, left and Burley Orrison, business manager of Tinley Park State hospital. Open house will be held Sunday April 29 with tours from 1:00-4:00 through all facilities of Tinley Park State Hospital, announced Dr. Cutler.

TINLEY PARK STATE hospital chief psychologist, Herbert Altschuler, and intern psychologist Robert Marek demonstrate one of the psychological tests used at the institution. This will be part of a display set up by the psychology department for the annual open house Sunday (April 29) in connection with Mental Health Week. Tours will be conducted through hospital facilities from 1-4 p.m. Sunday.

Invites Public To View Work At Tinley Hospital

Tinley Park State Hospital will hold its annual Open House on Sunday, April 29, the beginning of Mental Health Week, it was announced by John L. Cutler, M.D., Superintendent.

Guided tours will visit all of the hospital's facilities including laboratories, operating room facilities, hospital and infirmary wards, and dietary facilities, with a special bus tour of the laundry and power plant for all who are interested. Patient activities will be going on during the tours, and displays will be set up by the social service, psychology, nursing education, activity therapy and volunteer services departments.

This year's theme for Mental Health week is "Community Action for Mental Health." Several community organizations will have representatives on hand to tell of the volunteer work their groups do, and volunteers will act as tour guides.

Tours will be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m.

Home Of Mokena Grade School Teacher Burns

The home of Miss Mary Donahue at 209 Fourth Ave., Joliet, was practically destroyed by fire last Saturday afternoon. Her invalid mother, Mrs. Ann Donahue, 86, was carried out of the blazing house by neighbors. Miss Donahue is a teacher in the Mokena grade schools.

The home, a two story frame dwelling, was practically in ruins. The contents were all lost and the interior of the house was either burned or so badly damaged by smoke and water that it would have to be rebuilt.

Plan Grand Opening Of Car Agency

Warning Chevrolet, of Frankfort, will have a double celebration the weekend of May 4 and 5.

The agency is having its own grand opening and will also be observing the 59th anniversary of the Chevrolet division of General Motors.

Starting from scratch Chevrolet has grown into one of the world's largest manufacturers of automobiles. Established only comparatively recently the Warning firm plans to become one of the most important Chevrolet agencies in the county.

Stanley and Glen Warning, who operate the business, say they will have the leading models of the 1962 line on hand for the grand opening.

Their service department also will be set up with the latest electronic testing devices in the Sun Equipment line.

The public is invited to attend the two-day opening. There will be awards and refreshments.

File New Petition For Mokena Fire Protection District

Because of an overlap in the petition setting forth the boundaries of the proposed Mokena fire protection district the original document has been withdrawn and a new petition filed in the Will county court.

Hearing on the new petition has been set for May 28 by Probate Judge Stewart C. Hutchison sitting in the county court in the absence of County Judge

John C. Cowing who has been out of town.

The original petition included a portion of Westhaven, an incorporated village lying east of U.S. 45, which also is known as 96th avenue. Westhaven does not want to be in the Mokena fire protection district and there were three landowners further south and east of 96th ave. who also wanted out. The new petition excludes those portions to which there had been objections.

The north boundary line of the proposed district is 167 street. The east line is 96th ave., south from 167th until section 3 is reached. Then the east line extends over into about the middle of Sec. 3 and holds to 191st street when 96th is again the east line. Arbury Hills is a part of the Frankfort fire district.

The south line of the proposed Mokena district is approximately the line of Hickory creek or the north line of the Frankfort district. The Mokena district would run up to the boundaries of the New Lenox fire district and the west line is the Homer township boundary.

If the new petition is found sufficient at the hearing May 28 the court will then proceed to set a date for a referendum at which the residents of the proposed district would have an opportunity to decide the question.

A fire protection district is a separate taxing body. It can impose a tax on property within the boundaries which would enable the district to purchase and maintain the equipment necessary to afford protection for the property owners.

The Mokena department, like other volunteer departments in the region has operated in the past on public donations. It is becoming increasingly difficult to operate a department on dances and subscriptions, a spokesman pointed out, so it was decided to endeavor to form a fire protection district.

Dedicate New Post Office At New Lenox Saturday

Formal dedication of the new post office at New Lenox will take place Saturday afternoon, April 28, at 3:30 o'clock and Postmaster Lester Brown and his staff invite the public to attend.

Frank G. Sulewski, assistant to the regional director of the Chicago regional office of the post office department, has been assigned to give the dedication address. Douglas Anderson will represent U. S. Paul Douglas and present the official U.S. flag that will fly over the New Lenox post office.

Following the dedication ceremony there will be an open house at the post office and the public permitted to tour it.

In the event of inclement weather the ceremony will take place in the Methodist church hall, Church street and Haven avenue.

The dedication is being sponsored by the New Lenox Association of Commerce. The New Lenox Garden club will serve refreshments following the ceremony.

The new post office provides ample space at the present but if the population increases as forecast by experts in those matters an addition or a new building will be needed in 10 years time, it was pointed out.

The speaker, Mr. Sulewski is a graduate of Northwestern university college of liberal arts and law school and has served in various government and quasi-government departments and organizations including the office of censorship and the United Nations. He is active in civic affairs.

Trustees Study Plans To Broaden Front St.

Village officials are studying a proposal to widen Mokena's Front street by having the power line poles set back flush with the sidewalks. The extra width thus obtained could be used for parallel parking and still provide ample space for two way traffic, it was explained.

Because the state does not allocate gas tax money for paving parking space, or space between curbline and sidewalk, as this would be, the village would have to bear the cost. It was estimated by Ralph Yunker, engineer, that the job would cost about $1,800.

Mayor Charles Swanberg suggested that businessmen be approached to see if they would cooperate by repairing sidewalks at the time the street is improved. The village may be ready to advertise for bids by May 15. Yunker has the plans almost completed.

At the meeting last week no action was taken on the request of James Wrath, made at the previous council session, that the village give some assistance in draining Revere road. Wrath has paid for repairing and clearing a broken tile line leading to Wolf road that was the main drain tile for the east end of the village, he said, and put in a new drain to clear his property. This line has helped drain the entire neighborhood, he stated, but a blocked district and some construction has blocked the flow of water. Yunker suggested the village install some jointed rubber tile to replace that installed by Wrath. About 50 feet of this tile would be required, Yunker said, and the cost could be about $1.60 a foot.

Carol Roberts was offered the post of village maintenance man and if he declines the job will go to Ival (Doc) White. The pay would be $350 a month. The conditions call for a 40-hour work-week. Roberts is fire chief; White is a restaurant operator.

George Reinke presented a petition signed by 17 residents along Niethamer avenue, asking that the name of the thoro-fare be changed back to Midland avenue. The petitioners say the new name, only recently adopted, will make it necessary to change insurance and other papers in which an address is an essential part. No action has been taken as yet. The board did, however, grant another petition asking that the name St. Mary's road be restored to that short street near the Social Center. Recently it was renamed Walsh lane.

A contract is being drawn up under which the village would extend water to the site of an apartment project planned by George Helgersen on Wolf road. A master meter would be installed but there would be shut-off valves for each apartment. Water rentals from the tenants would pay the cost of extending the mains.

Dog licenses are now due and are payable at the office of Village Clerk Alvin Sorensen in his home on Wolf road. Before a license will be issued the dog owner must show a certificate that the animal has had an anti-rabies shot. There will be no rabies clinic at the village hall, however. Dog owners are advised to consult their veterinarians.

"This year," D'Amico said, "53% of parochial school graduates in the district are enrolled in Lincoln-Way; next September we will have 45% of such graduates, a drop of only 8% which would mean very little for the overall picture. Providence high school from information available to us will draw its enrollment for the most part from Joliet."

The proposed new addition is expected to be adequate to provide classrooms for science, business, social studies, mathematics, English and foreign languages until the enrollment in such classes reach 1,280 or until 1965. The space for physical education, kitchen area, guidance, health, administrative area, toilet facilities, heating plant and library is expected to serve 1,600 students until 1967 or 1968.

A board spokesman says that the cost of the $750,000 bond issue will run to about $12 more a year on a home with a $10,000 equalized valuation or $6 on property valued at $5,000.

There is an organized effort to support the bond issue and a citizens committee has been canvassing the district seeking votes for it. At the same time there is an organized group that is working to defeat the bond issue.

Some of the opposition stems from the fact that people are against any additional taxes but most of it appears to be from those against Lincoln-Way becoming a part of a proposed junior college district which would be made up of Cook County school districts with the exception of Lincoln-Way. Proponents of the bond issue have pointed out there is no connection between the two questions but those who are fighting junior college apparently take the position that by defeating the bond issue they can take a slap at the Lincoln-Way school board, according to observers.

The fact that Cook County School Superintendent Noble Puffer has set the junior college referendum for June is not helpful to the Lincoln-Way because it is serving to keep that issue stirred up, observers explain.

It was not expected that the junior college referendum would come up until fall but it is understood that the Blue Island high school district brought pressure to bear on Puffer to set it in June so it will be out of the way when their bond issue comes up.

Blue Island, like Lincoln-Way has had a building bond issue beaten.

Lincoln-Way would toss the junior college project out the window tomorrow if it could because the primary interest of the board and the school administrators is to improve the high school first, a spokesman declared.

"I hope," he added, "that the people will not lose sight of the only point they should consider, that the education of our youngsters come first. And we can't do the job properly if we don't provide sufficient classrooms. I hear it argued by some that instead of spending money on a larger building we should spend it on getting more and better

L-W Voters Will Decide Fate Of School Addition Saturday

Voters of the Lincoln-Way high school district will go to the polls Saturday to decide the fate of the proposed $750,000 bond issue that is needed if the district is to build an addition to the present plant. The polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

The board of education is asking approval of the bonds in order that work can be started this summer with the goal of having additional class space ready by September, 1963.

The additional space is needed it was explained in order to provide classroom for the anticipated increase in enrollment. There are some 850 students in the school now; by September, 1963, a board spokesman stated, it is expected the enrollment will be over the 1,100 mark. He went on to explain that only thru the use of the auditorium, halls and cafeteria is the school able to take care of the classes it now has.

By 1963, it was said, there just won't be any space unless the new addition is built. The other alternative is split shifts for pupils and teachers.

Split shifts, it was explained, would mean that some students would start their school day at 7 a.m. and for some the last classes would be let out at 6 p.m. Present bus transportation would be inadequate for such a schedule, it was said, which would mean that parents would be obliged to furnish some of the means for getting students too and from school.

School administrators fear that under such a set up it would be difficult to keep good teachers and the preparation of students for work or college would suffer materially.

The district is growing rapidly. In 1960 the population was 13,839. Between 1950 and 1960 Manhattan's population had increased 40%, New Lenox, 84% and Frankfort township 180%.

Figures compiled by utility firms in the district forecast that by 1970 the district population will be around 30,000.

Donald D'Amico, assistant superintendent at Lincoln-Way took exception to claims of these fight the bond issue that the opening of Providence high school next fall will relieve congestion at Lincoln-Way.

"This year," D'Amico said, "53% of parochial school graduates in the district are enrolled in Lincoln-Way; next September we will have 45% of such graduates, a drop of only 8% which would mean very little for the overall picture. Providence high school from information available to us will draw its enrollment for the most part from Joliet."

There were 440 pupils enrolled in the first grade in district schools last September. This fall it is probable the number will exceed 500. This year's eight grade classes have 273 pupils, next year's 304, the next 326, the next 344. There are 385 pupils in the second grade now, 380 in the third and 345 in the fourth so one can see that Lincoln-Way can expect only steadily increasing enrollments."

The proposed new addition is expected to be adequate to provide classrooms for science, business, social studies, mathematics, English and foreign languages until the enrollment in such classes reach 1,280 or until 1965. The space for physical education, kitchen area, guidance, health, administrative area, toilet facilities, heating plant and library is expected to serve 1,600 students

WILLIAM KRAMER, a New Lenox student, is one of 18 Joliet Catholic High school seniors awarded scholarships by the Illinois State scholarship commission, according to Joseph D. Boyd, executive director. The total represents an increase of 150% in state scholarships at Joliet Catholic over 1961.

Kramer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kramer of 709 S. Cedar and a graduate of St. Jude's school. At Joliet Catholic Kramer is a student in the honors course program.

A total of 5,158 state scholarships are being awarded this year. The results of the American college testing program examination were the basis for determining the college potential of the applicants.

All-school Play At L-W Is Set For May 4 And 5

"Once in a Lifetime," described as a rollicking comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, is the all-school play to be presented this year at Lincoln-Way high, May 4 and 5.

Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students and those in charge of the production are hoping that the ticket sale will be unusually heavy. This year the proceeds from the play will go into the fund the students are raising to buy an FM radio broadcasting system for the school.

Tickets may be purchased at the Mokena pharmacy, Dean's pharmacy at Frankfort, Elliott's drug store and the Coffee Cup at New Lenox, Seamon's store at Lincoln Estates, and Bernardin's flower shop Mokena.

"Once in a Lifetime" deals with the adventures of three small-time vaudeville actors who land in Hollywood and their schemes and plans to break into the big time and the big money.

The leads in the piece are taken by Dennis Porick, a senior, and Terry Hearn, a sophomore, both of Mokena, and Charles Carnahan, a senior from New Lenox.

The play, supervised by Maurice D. McClain, gives students experience in all phases of theatrical production--acting, stage production, make up and costuming, publicity and advertising and business management.

The FM system the students plan to buy would be used to broadcast school activities, scholastic as well as athletic events and so bring the school closer to parents and the others at home.

Will County GOP, Demos Elect Committee Chairmen

The Will county central committees of the Republican and Democrat parties were organized Monday night at meetings held in the court house at Joliet.

Both party chairmen, Henry C. Peterson for the Republican and Leo Meehan for the Democrats were re-elected without opposition.

The central committees are made up of the precinct committeemen elected at the primaries April -- there are 155 precincts so each committee has 155 members -- and they meet after election to organize for the next two years. Committeemen are elected every two years.

The Republicans elect all of their officers but the Democrats elect only the chairman and he in turn appoints any others.

Besides Peterson the GOP committee members elected Robert Blair of Monee, as first vice chairman; Frank J. Burch, Lockport, second vice chairman and Carl Edmundson, Braidwood, third vice chairman. Gilbert Niznik, Plainfield, was elected executive secretary, replacing John Jevitz who because of having moved to a new precinct did not run for committeemen and so for the first time in no-one-remembered-when is not on the central

Form Board At Summit Hill

The newly elected seven-member board of education for Summit Hill school district, No. 161 (Arbury Hills) has been organized by Will County School Superintendent Verne E. Cracel.

Marvin Rognlie, who with Clarence Lauffer, drew a one year term, was elected president, and Samuel LaRocca, a member of the former board of directors, was chosen as secretary.

DST BEGINS SUNDAY

Sunday Morning April 29 at 2 a.m., Daylight Savings Time begins for Illinois residents. Area folks are advised to turn their clocks ahead one full hour when they go to bed Saturday night. So as to lose that valuable hour of sleep they are also advised to go to bed an hour earlier to pick up the hour lost. DST is scheduled to end the last Sunday in October.

Committee. Albert H. Krusemark, of Frankfort, who lost out in the state senatorial race by a narrow margin, was re-elected recording secretary and Donald Tracy, a Joliet lawyer, was re-elected treasurer.

The next job for the committeemen of both parties will be to enlist support of their candidates in the November election.

LaRocca and George Peterson drew two-year terms while those determined by lot to serve three-year terms are Ray Doner, who was a director on the old board, Mrs. Thelma Estes and Walter Plumly.

The board will meet the third Monday of each month, at the school at 8 o'clock. A special meeting is scheduled for Monday night, however, April 30. The principal business facing the new board now is the selection of a superintendent to replace Charles Rellis who has resigned, effective at the close of the current school year.

Explains New Rabies Law

Dr. L.M. Webb, New Lenox, veterinarian and rabies inspector for Will county, reminded dog owners this week that under the new law pet owners may no longer keep their pets at home in the event they bite someone. Such dogs must be placed in a public pound or an animal hospital with a veterinarian in charge and held there 10 days after reception. Dogs must have rabies shots, Dr. Webb said, unless they are kept in an enclosure. The law defines an enclosure as a kennel or an enclosed run where the animal does not come in contact with the public.

Finds Bible Scholars Poor Botany Students

By ROBERTS MANN
(Conservation Editor Forest Preserve Dist.)

The King James version of the Bible mentions seven flowers, seven vegetables, several spices, and thirty-seven differently named trees. Some--such as cypress, shittah, ash, and telf--appear only once. Others--notably the palm, olive, fig, and cedar--occur many times.

This version was completed in 1611, long before botany became an exact science. Like several others, it was a translation by scholars who were not botanists, had never visited the Holy Land, did not realize that the native plants in that region were far different from plants in northern Europe, and made the mistake of identifying some of those mentioned in the Scriptures with familiar plants in England.

Consequently, the terebinth was called an elm or a telf, aspens were called mulberries, a mulberry was called "syca-

Farm Controls Just Don't Work, Experts Declare

By L. H. SIMERL
(Dept. of Agriculture Economist)

Everyone who knows farm people knows that many of them have serious income problems. Public programs for dealing with these problems have been tried and discussed for as long as most people can remember. One type of program, production controls for livestock producers, was discussed recently for two days at Purdue university. The occasion was the annual meeting of the National Institute of Animal Agriculture.

Speakers include economists from government service and state universities, representatives of agricultural businesses and farmers. They brought out several important facts that should be of concern to all citizens.

One economist, arguing for controls, said that farmers could have reasonable prices if they accepted controls, but not otherwise. Significantly, he did not say what prices would be considered reasonable, nor how much farmers could sell at those prices.

Another economist, not an official of the USDA, indicated that the goal of production controls would be to maintain livestock prices near present levels. He also said that so long as some people are willing to work in agriculture at low prices we cannot raise labor returns in farming much above present levels.

In a question period one man asked a panel of experts whether farm production controls had really worked in any country. No one on the panel, which included two widely traveled farm economists, could name any such nation.

Another economist pointed out that production controls could be in conflict with our overall national price policy. Price stability is a cornerstone of both our domestic and our foreign economic policy, in view of our balance-of-payments position. (Remember steel?)

There is no way to accurately forecast the effects of production controls upon food prices and the rest of the economy. If prices of food rise under a system of supply management, the government will hear forcibly from consumers. A rise of only 1 percent in the "cost-of-living" index would call for immediate wage increases of 2 to 3 cents an hour for two million workers, largely in manufacturing industries such as farm implements and automobiles.

Wage increases in these industries would set a pattern for similar raises for other wage earners. These would tend to raise prices of things that farmers buy. This would offset, in part at least, any price gains that farmers obtain by production controls.

It would also put the United States at a further disadvantage in selling both farm and industrial products in other countries. It would hinder our efforts to maintain our gold reserves and extend aid to the developing nations of the free world.

In the Douay version, Isaiah 6:14, God commands Noah: "Make thee an ark of timber planks." In the King James version this is written: "Make thee an ark of gopher wood." Modern scholars believe it means the extremely durable wood of the tall massive evergreen cypresses that, together with towering cedars and oaks, clothed the slopes of the Lebanon and other mountain ranges in Biblical times. "Gopher" is very similar to the Hebrew and Greek words for cypress.

In the King James version the Lord commanded Moses to build a tabernacle, an altar, an ark of testimony and a table for it, using "shittim wood". Shittim is the plural of shittah, the Hebrew name (Isaiah 41:19) for an acacia that grows on Mount Sinai and is the most common tree in the Arabian desert where the Israelites wandered for 40 years. Like the mesquite in our southwest, it is a legume, its branches are armed with spines, and the fruit is a pod. Altho gnarled, twisted and shrubby in the desert, elsewhere it becomes 25 feet tall and its hard, close-grained, orange-brown wood is available for cabinetwork.

Another network, very common in the Holy Land, is the evergreen carob or "locust-tree". Its seed pods, from 6 to 10 inches long, full of a sticky pulp and honey-like syrup when ripe, are used as food for livestock as well as people. Those were the "husks" eaten by the prodigal son (Luke 15:16) and probably the "locusts" eaten by John the Baptist (Matthew 3:4). A third legume, native to Palestine and similar to our redbud, is the famous "Judas-tree", upon which, according to legends, Judas Iscariot hanged himself.

Palestine, 3000 years ago, was a land of palm trees, especially the date palm that not only produces "bread, wine, and honey" but has the Arabs say, as many uses as there are days in the year. Outside the walls of cities, wealthy people had "gardens" in which grew olive and fig trees, spices, and perhaps a few trees such as apricot, pomegranate, almond, pistachio, and Persian walnut.

To Show Film About Berlin

A timely film, "Outpost Berlin," is to be shown Sunday night in the Park View Baptist church, Scott st. and LaPorte rd., Mokena, at the 7 o'clock service.

The film shows the "divided city" in all of its tensions. It is the story of the Billy Graham Crusade in Berlin in 1960.

The public is invited. There is no admission charge but a free will offering will be taken.

Asks $50,000
for Injuries

(CNS) An Oak Lawn resident who was thrown from a horse and seriously injured is suing the Lucky Circle Ranch No. 1, 95th and Keane, Hickory Hills, for $50,000 in Circuit Court. Diane LaFaire, 16, of 3425 W. 63rd Pl., alleged that on June 7, 1961, she rented a horse from Lee Stahnke, owner of the stable, and was given insufficient instruction by a trail guide, "well knowing that the plaintiff was inexperienced in riding horses."
According to Miss LaFaire's attorney, Martin J. Kennelly, she was thrown from the horse, sustaining two fractures in the pelvic region which left her unable to walk for approximately eight months.

Saturday's Election Is Important

Voters of the Lincoln-Way high school district have an important election coming up this Saturday, April 28.

The high school board is asking approval of a $750,000 bond issue that it may proceed with the building of an addition to the present school plant.

It is to be hoped there will be a heavy vote so whatever the decision may be it will be an expression of the majority of the people living within the district.

Last February the proposition was submitted to the electorate at a special referendum. It was defeated by 69 votes. The voting was comparatively light.

The school board has submitted the same proposal again -- as soon as it was possible. The reason for this, the board explained, is that if this time the bond issue is approved it will be possible to get work on the program started this summer so that at least a portion of the addition will be ready for use by September, 1963.

According to the best figures obtainable by the board, the enrollment, which is now around 850, is expected to top 1,100 by the beginning of the 1963 school year.

What to do with this number of students is the problem confronting the board. There is not sufficient class space now to meet the needs of the present enrollment, it was explained by school officials. Unless something is done to relieve the situation before September, 1963, it was pointed out, educational standards will suffer. Overcrowding will mean double shifts and as Lester Case, a board member from Manhattan, brought out at a recent meeting of the board, the district does not have the equipment nor the funds to double the school's transportation system.

The thought of paying more taxes is not a pleasant one; neither is the prospect of seeing the school deteriorate. The simple fact is that the enrollment is outgrowing the school plant and the condition is likely to continue for many years.

A vote for the bond issue will serve to relieve the situation, a vote against it will only make conditions worse.

We are not asking you to vote for the bond issue. That is something for you and your conscience and your sense of responsibility to decide.

We would suggest, however, that in reaching a decision that you keep this thought in mind -- "Is this for the best interests of education of our young people and of the community?"

The referendum Saturday has nothing whatever to do with the junior college question. It has nothing to do with politics nor personalities.

The referendum Saturday is solely concerned with the welfare of the school and its student body.

To all Lincoln Way High School Musicians:

Congratulations, champions, on your sweepstakes award in the state music contest at Ottawa Saturday!

Truly you are champions -- not only in musical talent, but also in discipline, appearance and school spirit.

Surely everyone who attended this event could be proud to be a part of Lincoln-Way high school whether as a contestant or a spectator.

Our most sincere appreciation to the teachers of the music department -- Mr. Taylor, Mr. Olson and Mr. Thompson. We realize how many hours of work and sacrifice over and above your regular schedule must be given to attain this state recognition.

To you students -- thanks a million. Keep up the good work and show you are proud and grateful for the opportunities offered you at Lincoln Way high school.

We as parents pledge to keep the doors of these opportunities open for you students.

Sincerely,
Wendell & Marcella Morrison

Dear Sir:

As you know, Saturday April 28 is the day the high school referendum for expansion will be submitted to the voters of the Lincoln-Way Community high school district for approval a second time. This same referendum was defeated several months ago by a small margin of 69 votes. Will this referendum be defeated a second time? Possibly. Does it have any chance for approval? Definitely, if the good citizens of the community who realize and appreciate the value of a good high school will come to the polls and assent their approval.

Who voted against the referendum previously? Aged people who may be considered hardship cases would vote against it, and with good reason. However, many other voters do not have much of an excuse to vote down the referendum, except possibly for their own selfish reason by refusing to help, even though the maximum cost to any one family would be not more than $12 annually. The average cost per family in the Lincoln-Way High School District would be closer to $9 a year.

I personally know of parents and grandparents who can well afford to support our high school but who do not, and I doubt if there is anything we can do to make them see the light, and the great harm they could be doing to their children and grandchildren. There is no necessity for making any threats; however, the fact remains that if this bond issue is defeated again, and perhaps a third time should this one fail, then for the school year beginning in September of 1963 there is no alternative and no possible cure for a very unpleasant situation that will arise, but to have split classes, which will not only be an inconvenience to the school but a far greater inconvenience to parents. The students who will suffer the greatest inconvenience are the present seventh graders and down the line, unless the good citizens, good parents, and good grandparents come to the youngsters assistance.

Am I personally angry with the community? No, for the reason that my youngest will graduate from high school in June of 1964, which will mean only one year of hardship and inconvenience. Nevertheless, as a citizen I am somewhat disturbed and saddened by the events to come to this community, as neglect to support the high school is tearing the heart out of the community, and it will be the first definite step toward making the Lincolnway High School District a slum area.

What I have mentioned is very unpleasant reading, and it is hoped that each eligible voter will realize the possible seriousness of the situation, and will come out and vote "YES" -- not for the high school -- not for the high school superintendent -- not for the faculty -- but definitely for their own children.

ELIGIBLE VOTER: Residing one year in state, 90 days in county and 30 days in district. Need not be registered.

Sincerely,
JOAN PORICK
Mokena, Illinois

AGAINST BOND ISSUE

Dear Sir:
Taxpayers in the Lincoln-Way high school district have a grave decision to make this April 28. Shall they approve the $750,000 bond issue for new buildings at L-W?

Those working hard, and no doubt sincerely, for the bond issue have raised the accusations of ignorance, stinginess, and just plain opposition to education against those who are taking a long hard look at these new plans.

If I vote against this issue it will be the first time I have ever voted against an increase in taxes for educational purposes. If I vote against this L-W bond issue there will be a second time when I vote without hesitation in opposition to the proposed Cook County junior college.

There are those who say there is no connection between these two problems. I respectfully submit these two are inter-related and in the arguments to follow will point out why I believe this to be true.

1. The more I study the junior college set-up the more I am outraged at the L-W school board's arbitrary action in committing our district to this very expensive venture. It is even more than an outrage as it is inconceivable that they did not know exactly what they were doing, knowing full well our voice would count nothing if other districts find this new college attractive. So I find the accusations that anyone opposing this bond issue on April 28 is ignorant, stingy, "opposed to education" stem from the arrogant assumption of our board that we do not know what is best for us, that we are incapable of making a correct decision, that we are selfish and mercenary because we are alarmed over rising tax costs and begin to demand economy.

2. That leads me to ponder over the plans for school buildings. I would like to see local contractors who understand about building go out to Lincoln-Way and study those plans. I would like to hear them say these plans allow for the most functional and economical, good and substantial buildings we can put up for the money. If they would agree this is true I would gladly vote "Yes". But a board that would be so irresponsible in committing us to the added expense of a new junior college when our constantly increasing population means building new grade schools, additions to old grade schools, ever increasing demands from our high school and the distinct possibility of the need of a brand new high school in the not too distant future, can scarcely be expected to have concern for economy in building costs.

3. Usually builders recommend two-story construction for economy and upkeep. Heating costs are a large item in this climate. Our plans at L-W appear to be one-story buildings. Some people call this "the country-club atmosphere in schools". Nice, but can we afford it? Is it wrong for the taxpayers to give this long and sober thought? Has the good American virtue of thrift disappeared from our lives?

4. Taxpayers thinking this over opposed to education? I think not. Rather, they question if there is not some confusion in the minds of too many planners about where the emphasis on education should lie. Is it brick, stones, glass, and landscaping, or is it in the quality of teaching? Perhaps it is far more important to raise teachers' salaries, attract and hold excellent teachers, give due respect and regard to the good teachers now at Lincoln-Way, than construct rambling buildings that might be built more simply and economically and serve the same purpose.

5. The new Providence high school opens this fall at its location on Rte. 30. This will certainly affect L-W enrollment this fall and in the years following.

6. Why must we ridicule and insult the elder citizens who feel a justifiable alarm over the rising real estate taxes on their simple homes. They realize the need to educate their children and grandchildren to the best of our ability, the very best, and I am sure our taxpayers would all agree to that, each within his understanding as to what constitutes education, and within his ability to pay.

The remarks we have heard about the high school doing a "baby-sitting job" are not reassuring, coming from educators. If this is true it is too bad. Are we relieving the parents and homes of their moral and rightful responsibilities? Where are we going in

On Second Thought

By GLENN F. LOGAN

Where do things go? Inanimate things that supposedly have no built in means of locomotion?

Maybe you are one of the fortunate ones for whom things stay fixed. There are many, however, who have a great deal of trouble with things. Things wander around in inexplicable fashion so one is continually compelled to hunt them down.

Things have a great habit of losing themselves on this desk. Any one not accustomed to seeing it might essay some smart crack like -- "That's not surprising," or "Is there really a desk under there?" But really it's not that bad. Oh, there may be a few odds and ends of paper, notes, copy (present and future) books, newspapers, annual reports of taxing bodies, corporations and various organizations, ink pad, ash tray, scissors, pipe rest, wire baskets, telephone, photos and a few miscellaneous items. Not really much and for anyone to refer to it as a mess is quite uncalled for.

Did you ever lay a pencil or a ballpoint pen down on a table or desk, turn away for two... three seconds and then when you turn back to pick it up the thing is gone?

That's what I mean in saying that things move about. This pen or pencil business is old stuff as far as this department is concerned. It happens several times a day. I press down on the papers under which it might have crawled. Maybe the top layer is a bit thick, I think, and one can't feel the pen with just a gentle touch so I slap down hard on the papers. No pen.

"Who has my pen?" I demand of the office at large. No one will admit picking it up. What's worse they compel me to think back, who was at or near my desk three minutes ago when I laid the pen down? They have me, no one was at or near the desk, not even a convenient stranger... I stir around in the miscellany, no pen, then I reach for the ash tray and in so doing brush a single sheet

America? Are we heading for a kind of statism? Is this what we really want?

With all respect for the many people who feel there should be no opposition to this bond issue I am compelled to say that the only trouble is that opposition has not been more articulate, that it has not been expressed much sooner. Perhaps then an alternative to the present building plans might have been presented.

This letter has been difficult to write. I know there are those who will brand me a rabble-rouser par excellence, a "trouble-maker". Nevertheless, some one needs to present the side of the opposition and many are afraid to do so. These things need to be said. I cannot write such a letter and ask that my name be withheld.

Sincerely,
Amy E. Engelhardt

LINCOLN-WAY HIGH SCHOOL

Dear Editor: I believe some facts should be brought forth in regard to our educational program at Lincoln-Way high school and the school itself.

In the eight years of its existence it has grown from a school with 275 students to its present enrollment of 885. Each year it has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools -- meaning that all credits earned at Lincoln-Way are given full recognition at all colleges throughout the country.

After the periodical inspection of the school by the office of the state superintendent of instruction, Olin Stead, head of the Division of Instructional Service, wrote a letter addressed to Lincoln-Way community high school dated May 20, 1960, in which he stated:

"I wish to compliment the administrator for his interest in providing excellent educational, as well as cultural opportunities, for each pupil enrolled in the school.

"There were many fine citizenship traits observed by me as I visited the school.

"The board of education deserves praise from every citizen of this area for the time and effort it has spent to provide this fine high school for the pupils in the district.

Citizens of the area should be very proud of this fine high school."

The University of Illinois just notified our high school that three of our recent graduates now attending this university were to receive class honors of copy paper so that it is lifted and there is the pen. Next time it may be at the bottom of the stack.

The ink pad and the ash tray do not wander much, but the rubber stamps that go with the ink pad are forever hiding out when they are wanted. The gadget on which one may rest a tobacco pipe is of metal and must stand about three inches high. How it can go off and hide is more than I can tell you... but it does.

Scissors and rulers not only go here and there on top of the desk but they know how to open the drawers and sometimes will jump into one of them and hide. So far the telephone has been fairly stable but the almanac gets the wanderlust now and then.

Tools have this same quality of appearing and disappearing at will. Several of my friends tell me they have difficulty in controlling such things as hammers, pliers, screwdrivers and even large wrenches. They put them down, turn aside for a breather or perhaps a beer and presto -- when they reach down to pick up the tool it's gone... There was a pastor once in Joliet who liked to do small carpenter jobs about his church. But he turned his head one day when his housekeeper called him to the telephone and when he turned around again the hammer had taken advantage of the moment to disappear.

About a month later he was delivering a sermon and had raised his left hand so his right could tick off the points he was making on the fingers of his left. At the same time he raised his eyes and instead of touching his left forefinger for point No. 1 his gaze became riveted and extending his right hand toward an overhead beam he really gave his congregation something to think about...

"So that's where that hammer got to," he declared happily (it was a favorite hammer) and went on with his sermon.

I know that the smart people are busy now with figuring out how to get around in space but it would be nice to have some of the brains stop for a minute and figure out where things go to.

It might be a good thing to know before landing on the moon. If things started wandering around up there it could be bad -- especially if it were the rations that disappeared.

In the current year Lincoln-Way had two final contestants in the National Merit Scholarship program. One of our students was recently accepted to West Point on the basis of his academic ability.

Our students generally rate above the national average on the national scholastic tests given at all high schools, such as the Iowa test for educational development.

Lincoln-Way has developed a reputation for being one of the better schools in regard to curriculum development and progressive practices. Such projects as team - teaching, accelerated math and science courses, the new modern foreign language laboratory, experimentation in program instruction, the utilization of various aural and visual tools and technologies are among a few of the educational developments in the program. Music and speech activities have gained recognition on the state level.

The rate of delinquency problems has decreased in the Lincoln-Way area by virtue of the school program and its influence upon the young people in our community. Students have learned to assume responsibility.

The rate of drop-outs has decreased each year since the school has been in operation. This means that less students are quitting high school and more are finishing their courses and graduating. This is a good indication that the school is an important part of the community and meets the needs of the students.

I believe that these results as shown in the school life of our students are the true tests of the accomplishments of a high school. I know that with the continued support and interest on the part of our community, Lincoln-Way high school can continue to move forward with progress, pride and with a great future.

Very truly yours,
ALBERT H. KRUSEMARK

MORE ON BOND ISSUE

Dear Sir: This is really an open letter to the people and the Lincoln-Way high school district.

As a prospective citizen to the Lincoln-Way Community it is my intention to humbly commend the entire community for its recent negative vote on the high school bond issue. In my trips about the community I was, earlier, somewhat disturbed by evidence of progressiveness in several of the towns,

FINANCIAL REPORT OF THE LIBRARY OF NEW LENOX TOWNSHIP, WILL COUNTY, ILLINOIS

STATE OF ILLINOIS) COUNTY OF WILL)

The following is a true report of moneys received and paid out by the undersigned Treasurer of the Library of New Lenox Township for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1962:

Balance on hand $ 525.92
E.A. Osmus, New Lenox
Town Collector-Taxes 765.52

Treasurer-Taxes 1,288.98

The community from which I am moving has, in recent years, become alarmingly progressive and has, accordingly, produced tax increases which are a considerable burden to a man of ordinary means such as myself. The negative vote on this bond issue is a rousing affirmation of my hopes that, in the Lincoln-Way community, I have found a people who are fully capable of uniting in resistance to the onus of change. I believe this resistance demonstrates an uncommon sagacity about the facts of modern living, for several reasons.

First, the rights of adults are too often cast aside for the so-called higher values of community improvement and education. After all, my friends, it is we adults who labor hard each day to bring home an increasingly inadequate salary. Most of this dearly-earned salary is consumed by family necessities. In all fairness, we, as the providers, should be allowed to retain the remainder of this salary for the purchase of a few deserved luxuries, painfully meagre rewards for the one-third of our lives spent in work. To be forced by taxes to squander this surplus on education, which provides no such tangible or immediate reward, is hardly within the limits of fair play. Lincoln-Way has displayed a keen shrewdness in protecting its rights. (It was particularly interesting to note that the bond issue received its heaviest defeat in New Lenox. I am told that New Lenox is the wealthiest and most prosperous of our several towns. The entire community should consider carefully the example of penny-wise New Lenox.

The community has also shown cleverness, I am sure, in recognizing that our young people are becoming a slothful, unprincipled lot. The cause of this decline, I feel (and I am sure you noted before voting), is centered in our schools. The schools have become, simply, a meeting place where bad ideas and lazy habits are disseminated and united. It is time that these "leaders of tomorrow" be put to work and be made to share the burdens of their tax-ridden parents. Few, I am afraid, will recognize the shrewdness of the Lincoln-Way voters in dealing with this problem. I am told by a reliable friend that the high school is already feeling the pressures of growth and that by 1963 the situation may be desperate. If you continue to wisely vote down these menacing bond issues, the school will, before long, be unable to function and you will have brought about the happy end of a menace to our youth. The young people will no longer be exposed to the school's progressive ideas and they will join hands with the rest of us in preserving the precious status quo.

With due apology I must, finally, submit a humble reservation concerning the rationale which a number of voters have expressed for their negative vote. I have learned that some feel the negative vote was a tangible expression of resentment for the proposed junior college. The voters who have taken refuge behind such a shield, I think, lack conviction on the matter at hand and have, if I may, put the cart before the horse. The total vote, I feel, reflects the majority's realization that first things are first. That is, by abolishing the high school one will have automatically settled the junior college problem; for without high school graduates we certainly need not worry about higher education. Those who espoused the junior college proposal as a rationale for their negative vote have, I believe, exhibited a certain spinelessness in confusing the issues and in failing to admit the matter of first importance, which will, as I have said, automatically quash the matter of higher education.

In conclusion, I must, again, praise the community for its perpetuation of a long tradition of resistance to change. Often, new citizens, with new ideas, present difficulties to a tradition of this sort. I assure you that this "new citizen" will firmly support the spirit of "our" community's tradition.

Respectfully your servant,
Witting Shallow

TINLEY PARK—Ke 2-4369
Several committees of the Extension Council are in the process of developing plans for our Extension Educational Program for the coming year. Committees have been appointed to consider problems and possible solutions in the following areas: (1) Production of agricultural commodities; (2) Management on the farm and in the home; (3) Marketing and utilization of agricultural products; (4) Community Development and Public Affairs, and Public Relations in Agriculture; (5) Vegetable Crop Production; (6) Production and Management in relation to Floriculture and Nursery Products.

I am sure the committee would welcome suggestions from anyone in this county who feels they can make a contribution towards increasing the effectiveness of the educational program of the Extension Service. The farm adviser and assistants are charged with the responsibility of carrying out the program planned by the committees.

Programs planned by local people have proved themselves effective over the past 50 years. In spite of publicity to the contrary, there has never been any interference or pressure on these program planning committees or on the farm adviser by officials in the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington. The Extension Service still conducts its program for the people, planned by the people.

Homeowners desiring to improve their surroundings with landscaping, will be happier with the results if they know the growing habits of the shade trees they use. Shading is only one of the functions of the trees. They also provide a framing for a view or background for a building. Some of the recommended fast growing varieties include thornless honey locust, ash, sycamore, red maple, and hackberry. For additional information on shade tree selection, contact the Extension Service in Tinley Park.

High prices at the meat counter may have led some consumers to believe that returns to the farmers who feed the cattle, have gone up considerably. It is true farmer-returns for feeding cattle were higher last year than the year previous. Last year, feeding good to choice calves returned $23 per head over feed costs. In 1960, these same feeders returned $7 a head. Other feeding systems returned $22 a head compared to $2 a head in 1960. Remember, that these are returns above feed costs and don't take into account the cost of equipment, operators' labor, depreciation on buildings, etc. So you see, it was not a tremendously profitable year for cattle feeders.

With the first "break" in weather, Cook county farmers will become anxious to plant corn. There are, however, some advantages to planting corn moderately late. U. of I. research shows that May 15 to 20 are about the best planting dates. This gives the farmer an advantage in combating weeds as well as helping to hold down the population of the European corn borer.

Using a soil insecticide at planting time will pay returns of 5-10%. If weeds are a serious problem, the use of a herbicide, either granular or liquid, may be indicated. I would be glad to assist in the selection of a herbicide and in weighing potential advantages versus disadvantages.

While speaking of using chemicals, it is appropriate to point out that these materials should be used in accordance with instructions on the label, and safety precautions should be followed in handling and storing these materials.

For the non-farmer audience, I should also like to point out that the use of chemicals in agriculture is one of the reasons why prices of food and fiber are excellent bargains. In spite of popular publicity, these chemicals don't find their way into the human diet, because of careful use of these chemicals by farmers and commercial applicators, and by strict inspection of fresh commodities to make sure that no food is contaminated by accident.

Following new bulletins are available at the Extension office in Tinley Park: Calibration of sprayers and granular applicators; Weed Control in the lawn and Disease Control in the Lawn, for homeowners.

Hints For Homeowners

BY: JAMES FIZZELL
ASS'T. FARM ADVISER

Sycamores and some oaks suffer from a serious disease which damages the leaves and twigs and if left uncontrolled can kill trees. The disease is called sycamore anthracnose. The sycamores in this area are suffering from severe infections of this disease. The first symptom is the dropping of young leaves in late April. The drop of the leaves may be so severe that the trees are completely defoliated. Later the disease shows up as brown, irregular blotches on mature leaves. The most serious symptom and the one that often goes unnoticed is the cankers which affect the twigs and branches. The cankers are so often so severe that they weaken the branches. This weakening results in a large number of fallen branches when there is a windstorm.

There are a number of spray materials that will control this disease, but organic mercury fungicides seem to show the most promise. Spraying once during the delayed dormant period, just as the buds are beginning to swell, gives good control. During wet springs or where infection has been severe, conditions may warrant two further treatments; one when the leaves are half grown and one two weeks later. All efforts should be made to spray only the trees, as mercury compounds are toxic to some other plant materials. Mercury spray is known to injure merion bluegrass. After spraying the trees the turf should be washed off thoroughly with water. Mercury compounds are also highly toxic to warm blooded animals and all safety precautions should be observed. Fungicides containing 10% phenyl mercuric acetate should be used at the rate of one pint per 100 gallons of water or one teaspoon per one gallon of water.

Zinec (Tithane Z-78, Parazate) or bordeaux mixture are substitute materials, but will require three sprays. Zinec is used at the rate of two pounds per 100 gallons or four teaspoons per one gallon of water and is applied as the buds begin to swell; when the buds break open; and the third spray about seven days later. Bordeaux mixture is applied when the buds burst, when the leaves are half grown and again when the leaves are full grown.

All leaves and fall branches of infected trees should be raked up and burned.

READ PSALM 34: 13-22
The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart, (Psalm 34:18.)

When Samuel Bradburn's wife Betsy died, the young preacher wrote these words in a letter to his friend John Wesley: "Despair and killing anguish have drunk up my spirits and nearly consumed my body."

Wesley wrote in reply: "Our comfort is, He that made the heart can heal the heart. Your help stands in Him alone. To His tender care I commend you."

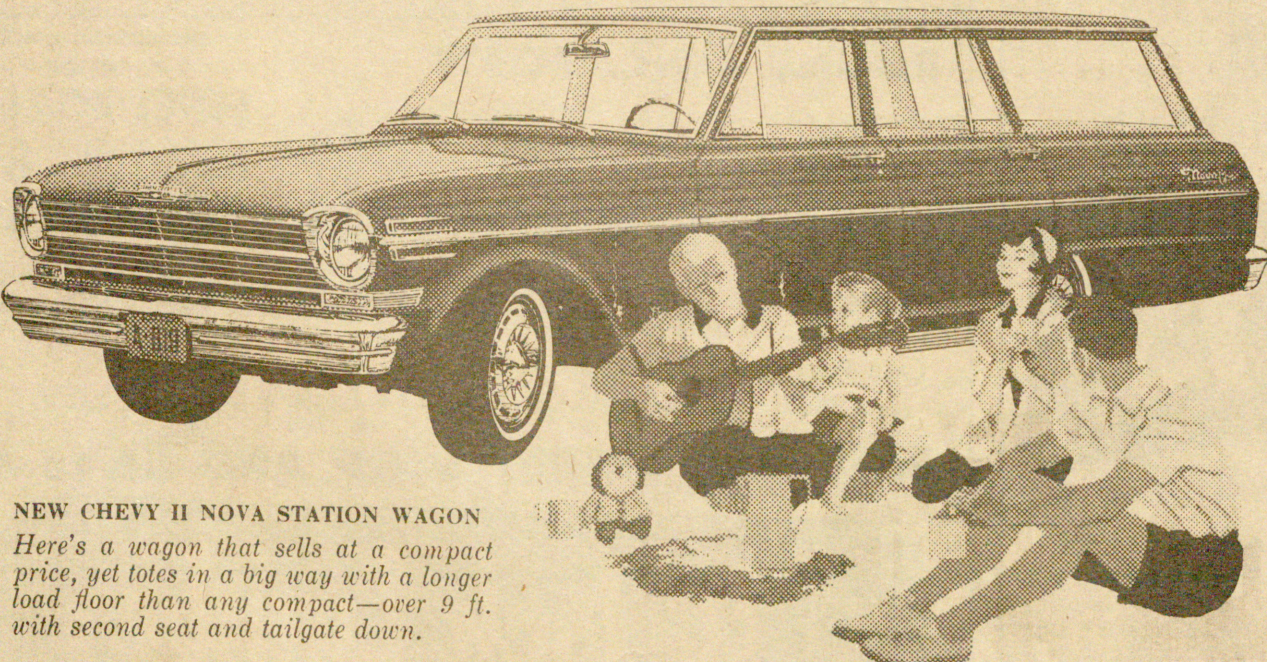

This reply of the great man of God points to the true source of light in the darkness of bereavement -- to none other than the living Christ. It is He who causes His friends to rejoice, giving them "beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that they might be glorified."

PRAYER: O Father almighty, Thou who didst raise from the dead Thy beloved Son, number us among the rejoicing friends of the living Savior. Pervade our hearts with the light of His spirit. Grant us power to do His bidding. Render us joyful in service to our Savior who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: "He that made the heart can heal the heart."

Western Open At Medinah C. C. Scheduled For June 28-July 1

Golf & Recreation Supplement

Top Pros In U.S. Expected To Enter

The Chicago area will gain a new major sports event this summer when the 1962 Western Open is held at Medinah Country Club. Dates for the 72-hole $50,000 classic are June 28-July 1, preceded by three days of warm-up practice play.

Defending Champion Arnold Palmer heads the starry field which will include virtually every top-notch pro of the modern era. The Western Open traditionally draws a classy entry as witnessed at the 1961 Open when 37 of the 38 leading money winners of the year were entered.

As local golf fans know, the Western Open is to become a permanent fixture in the Chicago area with the 1963 event already booked for Beverly Country Club. While the Western has not been played in Chicago since 1939, when the unveiling takes place this year, it will be revealed as an old friend.

59TH TOURNAMENT

This will be the 59th time that Western Golf Association has conducted its Open. It was launched in Chicago in 1899 at Glen View Club and was held in this area 15 times in the first 40 years of its history. Until this year, however, the Western, by policy, was rotated among various sections of the country.

"We viewed 1962 as the ideal time to establish a new policy on our Open championship," explains William F. Souder, Jr., Chicago insurance executive who is president of WGA.

"Actually, it was a two-way deal. First, Chicago has lacked a major event of its own since 1957 when the combined All-American and World championships last were held at Tam O'Shanter. Certainly Chicago, one of the finest golf cities in the country, deserves to have a golf classic of its own each year.

"Second, the time had come for WGA to settle its Open in one spot. Where was a more natural place than Chicago. We have a full-time staff at our permanent headquarters and we are best known here."

The WGA is recognized in this area for one well-known activity besides its championship. That activity is the famed Chick Evans caddie-scholarship program which WGA administers through its Evans Scholars Foundation.

More than 1,200 deserving young men from caddie ranks have benefitted from this program since 1930 by receiving an Evans scholarship. Currently, there are 443 Evans Scholars in college---186 from the Chicago area---and each has a tuition-and-housing grant renewable for four years and valued at approximately $3,000.

The Western Open is tied indirectly with the scholarship program since all profits from the championship will go to the furtherance of the Evans Scholars Foundation.

This became possible through another policy change in effect this year. Instead of the host club (Medinah) handling the business end of the tournament, it will be done by WGA. Medinah graciously is providing its facilities to WGA, which will collect all the money, pay all the expenses and then turn over the profits for the scholarship program.

"Frankly, we are hopeful that the Western Open will become a major source of income for the scholarship program," points out Souder. "It is truly a charity event."

TOP COURSE

Along with the cause, the course also is the best. Medinah is the only country club in the midwest with three 18-hole courses, and the No. 3 layout is rated as one of the finest championship spreads in the country.

This will be the sixth time that a major event has been played on No. 3, the last being the USGA's National Open in 1949 when Cary Middlecoff became champion. The last Western Open in Chicago (1939) also was held there with Byron Nelson topping the field.

Noted for its length, its tight tree-locked fairways and its puzzling greens, No. 3 possesses all the qualities required to pose a stern test to even the most expert players. The layout has been compared with Augusta National, Pebble Beach, Pine Valley, Pinehurst No. 2, Merion and Oakland Hills when golf experts discuss the nation's top courses.

History has accorded the Western Open permanent prestige, particularly in view of the luster of its winners. Top stars of all eras have gained their spot on the roster of champions. Walter Hagen is the dominant figure with his five victories, but there are many other standouts among the old-time champions---Chick Evans (the only amateur ever to win), Ralph Guldahl, Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour and a flock of others.

PALMER WON IN '61

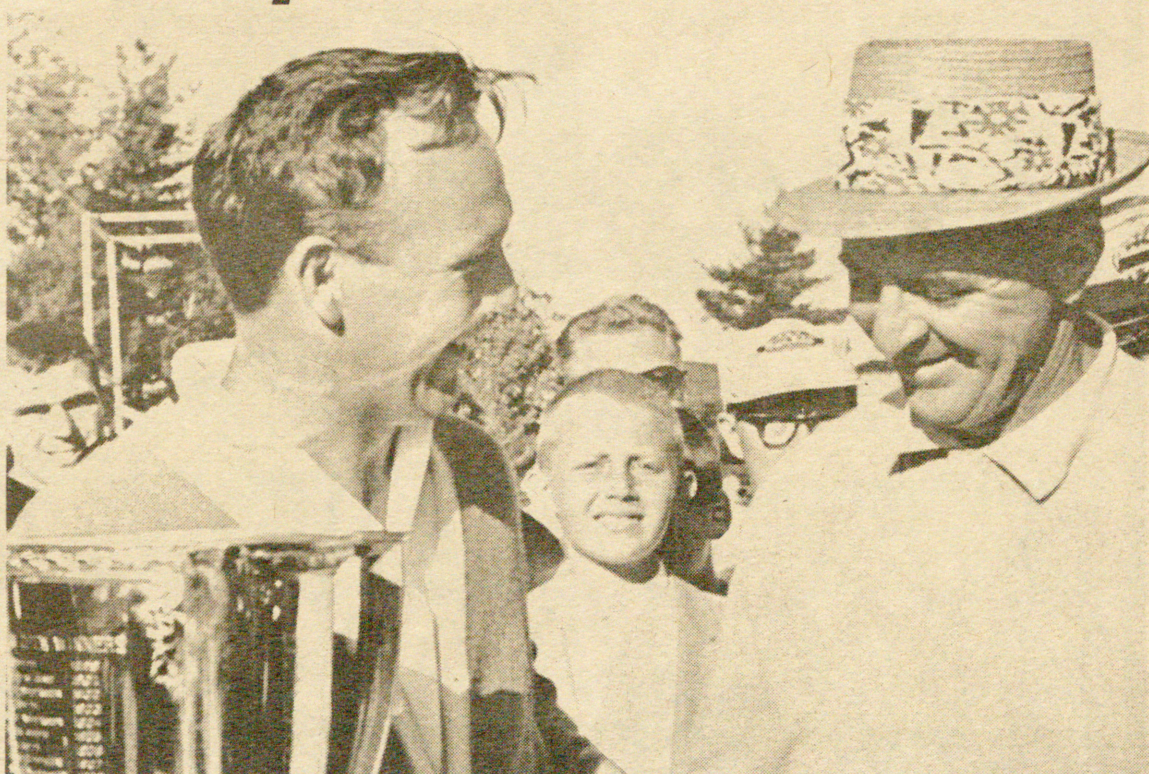

Modern stars are headed by Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, each a two-time winner, plus Jimmy Demaret, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum, Cary Middlecoff, Dutch Harrison, Doug Ford, Mike Souchak and the 1961 champion---Palmer.

Snead, last man to win the Western Open in successive years, gave Palmer his closest chase in the 1961 event at Blytheville Country Club near Grand Rapids, Mich. Palmer shot rounds of 65-70-67-69 for a 271 total and led or shared the lead in every round. Snead closed fast with 67-66 for second place at 273.

Key to Palmer's triumph, just like it has been the key to many of his major victories, was the way he mastered the par-5 holes with his amazing accuracy with long irons and woods. While shooting 13 under par for the distance, Palmer was 12 under on the par 5's. Just to prove his excellent balance as a player, Palmer also gave a distinguished performance on the greens. He never was guilty of three-putting throughout the entire event, and used only 125 putts for the 72 holes.

Behind Palmer and Snead, the next four places went to Johnny Pott (274), Billy Casper (275), 1958 champion Doug Sanders (276) and Mac Main (277). Gene Littler, winner of the National Open just the week before, shared 278 with Dave Hill and Bob Goetz. Defending champion Stan Leonard tied for the 10th at 279 with Ted Kroll, Don Fairfield and Bob Duden.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of all was the astonishing way which Gary Player shot himself out of contention on a single hole. The Masters champion and leading money winner for the year, Player

Set Rules For 32nd State Amateur Championship

The 32nd annual Illinois State Amateur Golf Championship will be played under a new pattern formulated during recent months by the tournament committee of the Chicago District Golf Association. The 1962 format calls for sectional qualifying followed by three days of match play at Butterfield Country Club.

Eighteen hole sectional qualifying will be held on Monday, June 11, over the University of Illinois golf course, Savoy, and the Midlothian Country Club, Midlothian. The medalist at each site will be awarded a prize and tie for medal will be broken by sudden-death playoff.

A line from East to West across the state, along the southern boundaries of Will, Kendall, DeKalb, Lee and Whiteside counties, will determine contestants' qualifying site. Residents north of the line

FREE WGA BROCHURE

Western Golf Association has prepared an interesting brochure on its 1962 Western Open. This six-page publication is packed with pictures, facts, history, maps---everything the golf fan wants to know about the big championship this summer at Medinah Country Club. It also contains full information on tickets.

This brochure is available free upon request. For your copy, just write: Western Golf Association at Golf, Ill.

was co-favorite with Palmer when the firing began. But the second day he took a nine on a par-4 hole after whiffing on three straight swings.

That was just one of hundreds of explosive incidents packed into the long history of the Western Open. More such excitement is guaranteed this summer at Medinah when the Western Open launches a new phase as Chicago's own championship.

must attempt to qualify at Midlothian while residents south of the line must enter the round at the University of Illinois. The committee will permit no exception to this regulation. The number of places at each site will be based upon the total entries in each location.

Thirty-one will qualify to join Ed Moehling, Jr., of Mr. Prospect, the defending champion, for the match play duel at Butterfield Country Club at (Hinsdale). Two 18 hole matches will be played Monday and Tuesday, June 18 and 19 followed by 36 hole finals Wednesday, June 20.

The championship will be open to amateurs who are legal residents of the State of Illinois and have validated handicaps of five or under. Entries, accompanied by $10 fee, must be received in the office of the Chicago District Golf Association, LaSalle Hotel, Chicago, by 9 a.m. Thursday, May 31. Tee entries will not be accepted.

Pairings will be made and players notified of their starting times in sectional rounds by June 7. Pairings for the Championship will be made by blind draw and qualifiers will be notified of their starting times by June 15. If a qualifier must withdraw from the championship an alternate from the same qualifying section will receive the open spot.

Prizes emblematic of the State Amateur Golf Championship will be awarded to the winner, runner-up, semi and quarter-finalists with a memento going to each of the 32 qualifiers.

This is the first major change in the State Amateur Golf Championship in its 31 year history.

Lockport Golf Club Invites New Members

The Lockport Golf and Recreation Club recently opened its second season of operation at the former Texaco Co. course just north of Lockport.

Operating as a non-profit organization, the club is owned and operated by the members on a cooperative basis. The facilities include a picnic ground along with the 9 hole golf course and has been organized since the spring of 1961. May 11 of this year it will become an official chartered non-profit organization.

The golf course had previously been operated by the Texaco Co. for 12-15 years. Those area residents who may be interested in joining are invited to contact one of the club officers.

One of the most active golf families in the Golden Triangle area is the Don B. Titus family of 6726 Tinley Park Drive, Tinley Park. Here Mr. Titus shows his beginning daughter, Nancy, 16, some pointers on her tee shots. Awaiting their turn to shoot and get some pointers are Don, 17 and Carol, 13. The Titus family is quite sports-minded. Nancy is a cheerleader at Tinley Park High School and son, Don, has won letters in football, basketball and baseball at Bremen High School where he is a senior. They have already gotten in quite a few rounds this spring at Silver Lake Country Club where they play consistently.

Basics Of Boating

BY L. BRAUN

If words like beam, gunwale, starboard, skeg and aft confuse you as you page through boating magazines and catalogs, don't be too concerned. They're all a part of the nautical jargon that has for centuries bewildered not only land-lubbers but also men of the sea.

Confusing though it is, the nautical language is rich in tradition and the possibility of seeing it streamlined is remote indeed. Seasoned skippers take great pride in being able to speak the lingo fluently, often to the bewilderment of their land-locked friends. If you wish to appear in the know when talking with veteran seamen, you may want to start picking up some of these terms. Actually, it's a lot of fun to learn and use them.

To get you started, here are a few taken from "Outboard Boating Skills," a publication of the Evinrude boating foundation.

Astern--Behind the boat; a boat is going astern when it moves backward.

Beam--Greatest width of a boat.

Bend--Lines are not tied together; you bend two pieces of line together.

Bilge--The bottom of a boat, where the lower sides meet.

Bow--Forward or extreme front of a boat.

Chart--Marine version of a road map, showing bouys, water depths, etc.

Cleats--Boat hardware to which lines are fastened.

Freeboard--Vertical distance from waterline to freeboard.

Gunwale--Boat's rail, pronounced "gun'l."

Heave--What you do with a line--you heave it, you don't throw it.

Hull--The main body of the boat.

Port--Left side of boat when looking to the bow.

Starboard--Right side of boat when looking to the bow.

Stem--More or less vertical timber at the bow.

Stern--After, or back end of the boat.

Topsides--Sides of hull above water.

Underway--A boat is underway when moving through the water.

If the spring boating bug hasn't bitten you yet, it will shortly. The boating season will soon be under way and now is the time to start getting your equipment ready.

It's a good idea to have your marine dealer inspect and tune-up your outboard motor. He has the facilities to do the work properly. If you prefer to do the job yourself, however, here are some tips.

The first step is to remove the spark plugs and check them for pitted or carbonized areas and cracked or worn insulators. Since spark plugs are inexpensive but extremely important to proper motor performance, it's a good idea to replace them if they appear defective. If they are relatively new and appear to be in good shape, you can regap them at .030 inches and put them back in. Also replace cracked or worn rubber insulators.

Next comes the fuel system. Remove the carburetor sediment bowl and clean it and the filter element in benzine or clean gasoline. This will remove any gum deposits which may have formed. The bowl gasket should be replaced if it shows any signs of deterioration. Check all fuel lines in the engine as well as those on the tanks. If cracks or leaks show up, replace the defective lines.

Thoroughly inspect the lower unit. If you didn't do it last fall, drain the oil from the gear case and replace it with the type recommended by the manufacturer. After removing the propeller, clean and lubricate the shaft. Replace worn drive pins.

The propeller itself should be checked closely. If it is broken or badly bent, it will probably need replacing. Without being too noticeable, a propeller can be bent out of pitch to an extent that will cause engine malfunction. If there is any question, take it to a dealer to have it re-pitched.

EMERGENCY GAS CAP

If the pressure cap on your outboard's gas tank fails or gets lost, the motor won't run. But the heel of your foot just fits opening. Move motor to convenient position, step hard, and you can get home. And sometimes outboard fuel lines have a way of getting frayed, cut, or smashed as the motor turns back and forth. A length of old garden hose, slit to fit over gas line and lashed into place ends this hazard.

WELCOME TO GOLF DAY-- These Tinley Park Chamber of Commerce folks join us in extending an invitation to attend the annual golf outing at Silver Lake Country Club July 25.

Forest Preserves Offer Good Fishing Prospects

The fishing season is open in the Cook County forest preserves. Twenty-six bodies of water ranging in size from a few acres up to 300 acres are managed to provide game fish and panfish for family groups as well as sport fishermen.

"These waters are scattered throughout the county and are the only convenient fishing spots for thousands of our people", said President John J. Duffy of the board of forest preserve commissioners. Their locations, their sizes, the kinds of fish present and other information are listed in a new "Fishing Guide". For a copy, phone COLUMBUS 1-8400 or FOREST 9-9420.

Most of these fishing waters were deep enough to prevent damage to their fish populations during the prolonged ice of the past winter.

The nine new lakes excavated to furnish fill for the toll roads should offer better fishing than in 1961 according to President Duffy. Bass and bluegill fishing is good in Papoose Lake and Bullfrog Lake built by federal-state aid.

Saganashke Slough with an area of 325 acres will be open to fishing after having been drained, repaired and restocked with fish in 1960. However, the size of the fish will be small this season.

Maple Lake again is producing good-sized fish since the carp and rough fish were removed in 1958. Two, three, and four-pound bass were frequently taken in 1961. At least one weighed six lbs. four oz. In addition to bank fishing, the boat yard has 50 rowboats that are now available for rent.

A few thousand rainbow trout, seven to nine inches long, have recently been planted in the deep cool water of Axe Head Lake located one mile west of Park Ridge. This is an experiment to see whether this fine fish can be used successfully on a "put-and-take" basis in this region to add to the angler's catch. Forest preserve rangers will check the catches and enforce the daily limit of eight trout.

There is no special permit needed to fish in forest preserve waters. An Illinois hook-and-line license is required for persons over 16 years of age. There are no other restrictions on fishing for any of the kinds found in forest preserve waters, except that not more than ten black bass or eight trout may be taken in one day.

DYED LEADERS

Used to be no self-respecting trout man would be caught without his leaders dyed a light brown. Today's nylon jobs can still profit from a soaking in strong coffee or tea. After application, add cream and sugar, drink.

A New Way To Find Fish

An outboard motor seems to be the key to a comparatively new and very effective system of fishing. Although many "old timers" may disagree with some of the ideas, the system, which is based on scientific studies, has been proven as a sure fire method of catching fish.

These studies have revealed that bass are school fish that will usually group by the hundreds in deep holes or sanctuaries, as they are called. Sometimes they'll be found in the shallows but bass spend most of their time in the deeper water.

When bass do move into shallower water they will follow regular migration routes, generally sand bars sticking out into the lake. Find these bars and the sanctuary located at the end of them and you'll find the fish. This might sound like quite a job, especially when you are not familiar with the lake, but with an outboard motor it becomes quite simple and can be accomplished in a relatively short time.

But before looking for the migration route, it's a good idea to check the shore line. If a few casts fail to produce a strike you can assume the fish are in deeper water. The shore line is often a clue in locating the migration route. A shore line projecting out into the water usually continues as an underwater sand bar and can well be a migration route the fish use in moving between deep and shallow water.

Using a deep running spoon heavy enough to carry to the bottom, troll back and forth over the bar at a varying but rather fast speed. Keep working into deeper water and changing to heavier spoons as needed. At some point, either on the migration route or in the sanctuary itself, you should locate the school and when you do, get ready for action.

Even when they're not feeding, bass have a tendency to viciously attack a fast moving lure and a strike in deep water means you've located the school. Anchor at this point and continue to use the same lure. If the action stops it means the fish are on the move. If you haven't taken your limit by that time, pull in the anchor and start looking for them again.

Stock Trout In Illinois Streams

Brown and rainbow trout have been released in some Illinois waters and are available to anglers, the Department of Conservation announced.

Approximately 30,000 trout, of which 9,000 are browns and 21,000 are rainbows, were obtained by the Department from a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service hatchery at Manchester, Iowa, where they were reared over the winter.

Brown trout are being released in the following streams: Apple River in Apple River State Park near Warren in Jo Daviess County; Pine Creek in White Pines State Park near Oregon in Ogle County; North Fork of Kent Creek in Pages Park near Rockford in Winnebago County; and Pierce Creek near Lanark in Carroll County. Weather permitting, all these streams were stocked and ready for fishermen by April 7.

Rainbows will be put in Axehead Lake in the Cook County Forest Preserve, Clear Lake in Kickapoo State Park in Vermilion County and three spring-fed ponds near Coleta in Whiteside County. These areas were ready for fishermen by April 7, except the Coleta ponds, which will open at 6 a.m. April 28.

Brown trout were chosen for streams because they tend to do less migrating than rainbows.

Illinois trout fishing is "put and take" and if they are not caught before summer, they will probably not survive due to flooding and warm water.

Don't Forget Those Hunting And Fishing Licenses

Hook and line, fishing and hunting licenses for 1962 are available at the offices of city, county and town clerks throughout Illinois, William T. Lodge, Director of the Illinois Department of Conservation stated.

The 50¢ fishing license for anglers 65 years old or older must be purchased from the clerks, rather than from the Springfield office of the Department of Conservation.

The cost of a resident fishing license is $2., plus a 25¢ clerk's fee, an increase of 15¢ in the fee from last year. Non-resident anglers must pay $4 plus the clerk's fee, for a yearly fishing license. A ten day non-resident anglers permit costs $2 plus the 25¢ clerk's fee.

Resident hunting licenses cost $3 plus the 25¢ cler's fee. The minimum cost of a non-resident hunting license in Illinois is $15 plus the 50¢ clerk's fee.

Challenges Golfers

Big Run: Tough But Beautiful

Generally acclaimed one of the most beautiful golf courses in the Golden Triangle area, Big Run Golf Club located between Lemont and Lockport on Romeo Road, is also considered a tough test of a golfer's ability.

Big Run has, from tee to green the natural beauty of a top flight golf course and combines outstanding scenery with a challenging series of difficult holes.

It was organized Sept. 9, 1930 under the supervision of George E. Gee, C. H. Muehlenpfordt and

M. A. Strand. The club is presently managed by George Gee. It was formed to establish, maintain and conduct a country club for golf and promotion of good fellowship among members and patrons. The property which is now the golf course was originally purchased from a farmer and then developed into a golf club and course.

The club house is designed to amply care for the needs of every golfer, with dual locker room facilities for men and women, a comfortable dining room, modern pro shop facilities and a cocktail lounge.

Michigan Schedules 215 Special Events For Vacationers

Michigan's annual vacation calendar--just off the press--lists festivals, fairs, exhibitions, sports contests, parades and other events designed to entertain travelers. Copies of the 1962 Events Calendar are available from the Michigan Tourist Council, Lansing 26.

Heading the list are dozens of winter sports events during the first three months of the year, including ski jumping tournaments, downhill and slalom ski races, winter carnivals, ice fishing festivals and skating meets.

The spring vacation season, from April through mid-June, features blossom festivals, smelt and perch runs, maple syrup and mushroom festivals and trout fishing.

Summer in Michigan brings on the state's famed water attractions--boating, swimming, water skiing, fishing derbies, and sailboat and powerboat races.

Autumn events call special attention to fall color tours, canoe races, hunting seasons and fishing.

PORTER VARSITY GOLFERS-- These six carefree lads are the top golfers currently at Lockport Township High School. Coach Ed Hill expects them to be one of his better squads if they continue to develop this year and next. Silver Lake Offers Golf Facilities All Year Long Designed to provide year-round recreation for the most intrepid golfer, Silver Lake Country Club combines a 36 hole course with top-notch dining facilities. Located at 143rd and 139th Streets Silver Lake is one of the area's most interesting golf facilities.

The 36 hole layout is divided into a south and north course. The south 18 is 6,232 yards long and features a rolling series of holes with several wooded ravines. It has three water holes and a meandering creek to make a group of formidable hazards. Its ends with the famous "Devil's Elbow" at the 18th.

The north 18 is 6,856 yards long, is of championship calibre and is on gently rolling ground. In 1958 it was the site of the National Public Links championship.

Matt Carvey is the club pro and worked his way into golf as a caddy turning professional seven years ago. Nomran Uthe is manager of Silver Lake Country Club and John R. Coghill is president of the corporation.

The clubhouse and dining facilities are done in a modern contemporary style with facilities for the largest banquets or the smallest friendly family parties. The clubhouse has complete locker room facilities, a large bar, card room with TV and two dining rooms. Both the big banquet rooms, the Torquillion Room and the Redwood Room are open from April 1 to Oct. 15.

The original 18 hole course was built in 1927. Bert F. Coghill bought the course in 1937 and two years later purchased an adjoining 9 hole course. In 1941 he also bought Euclid Hills, an adjoining nine hole layout to make the present 36.

Top Tips For The Outdoors

SAVE YOUR YOUNGSTER

Sure, you know the old Boy Scout trick of following a stream if you ever get lost. But this may be the first year you're taking your boy (or girl) in the woods with you. The woods seem a lot bigger to them than you. Explain to him now, right now, that a stream ALWAYS leads somewhere and an endless circle through the woods leads only to panic and exhaustion.

CAMERA STRAP

It's easy to sew a small cloth strap to your hunting jacket with a buttonhole at the other end. A button goes on your jacket. Camera or binoculars are held securely by strap and out of way under left arm. A flip of the button releases strap for instant use.
